

SENATORS WERE NOT IN IT.

Denial that Congressmen Speculated in Silver Through Bateman & Co.

Disastrous Attempt to Float Atlantic and Danville Railroad Securities.

Wall street is discussing to-day with a great deal of interest the stories which have been in circulation during the past two or three days in regard to the relations of the bankrupt firm of Bateman & Co. with several prominent United States Senators, which, it is whispered, is a good deal to do with the recent failure.

It has been known for a long time that several members of Congress with speculative tastes have been dipping into the stock market pretty extensively, and the Senators referred to by the gossip of the Street are Plumb, of Ohio, Fairwell, of Illinois, and Cameron, of Pennsylvania.

Several prominent Wall street brokerage houses have flourishing branch establishments at the National capital, where every facility for dabbling in stocks is given to Congressmen, and Bateman & Co.'s Washington office was one of the most popular with public men who speculate.

One of the most attractive specialties in the market of late has been silver certificates, and as the action of Congress in regard to the silver question will have everything to do with the future condition of the market, those who have inside information as to the probable outcome of the present agitation have been backing up their opinions pretty heavily.

Rumors have been in circulation to the effect that the three Senators mentioned were among the most persistent in touching the market, and as their relations to Bateman & Co. were known to be very close, the story got around that they were plunging heavily in silver.

Other members of Congress are said to have speculated freely through other houses, and the Senators from Illinois, Kansas, and Pennsylvania were among the most active. The friends of Mr. Bateman, however, deny that they ever speculated in silver certificates through his firm, and Mr. Coon, the junior partner, made an emphatic denial of the report to an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning.

"I can state positively, of my own knowledge," he said, "that the story is utterly without foundation, and that none of the members of the Senate alluded to in the current rumors, nor any others, have ever speculated in silver through our firm."

"Whatever private business relations they may have had with Commodore Bateman in any of his railroad enterprises I do not know, and if I had any knowledge of the matter I would not be at liberty to say anything about it."

"I will say, very emphatically, however, that the relations of the firm with those gentlemen or any other members of Congress, had nothing whatever to do with our failure, which was simply due, as I have already stated, to the great shrinkage in value of securities held by us, and that the failure was due to a general depression of the market, and not to any speculation on the part of the firm."

Another story which is being circulated to the effect that the Senator friends of Commodore Bateman had been carrying out an extensive scheme to back up the firm's plans with regard to the Atlantic and Danville Railroad Company, and it is said that they subscribed considerably to a big block of the company's stock.

The condition was that Mr. Bateman should furnish a weekly statement of the progress of the company, to take up the majority of the bonds and stock. Mr. Bateman was allowed to do this matter up, but things got so bad over there, and there was so much distrust and apprehension, that he was unable to do so, and he was unsuccessful in obtaining the bonds.

Several other attempts were made, one of them since the November panic, but without result, to persuade Mr. Bateman to give up the property, and when everything failed, the Senators and several of their friends withdrew their support from Mr. Bateman, and the result was a crash.

With regard to this enterprise no information could be obtained from the friends of the firm this morning. It was said, however, that the Senators had been carrying out an extensive scheme to back up the firm's plans with regard to the Atlantic and Danville Railroad Company, and it is said that they subscribed considerably to a big block of the company's stock.

MURDERED WITH AN AXE.

An Almshouse Employee on Staten Island Found with a Crushed Skull.

Indications That the Deed Was Done by an Insane Pauper.

What had been supposed to be an accidental death at the Richmond County Almshouse on Staten Island is to-day found to have been a brutal murder, suspected to be the work of an insane inmate of the Almshouse.

Last Saturday afternoon Michael Timothy, a Swiss employed for the past few years as a farmer at the County Almshouse in Northfield, S. I., was found insensible on the floor in the storeroom of the Almshouse. He was unable to make any statement, and died early Wednesday morning.

Timothy was lying near the rope ladder, which is used in reaching the top of a tower in the storeroom. It was supposed that he had attempted to climb the ladder, had slipped, and fallen to the floor, and had thus received his injuries. No foul play was suspected, and the authorities concluding that it was an accidental death, took no action in the matter.

Coroner Wood, however, decided to hold an inquest as a mere matter of form.

Yesterday a rumor got around that Timothy had really met with foul play. Coroner Wood thereupon ordered Dr. Martindale to make an autopsy, which was done.

Dr. Martindale discovered that Timothy's skull had been fractured by a blow from a blunt instrument, on the complaint of the authorities deemed it advisable to make the autopsy, and the suspected party should not get wind of it.

EAST SIDE EXPRESS TRAINS.

Pleasant New Year Surprise for Third Avenue "L" Road Patrons.

Wildcat Trains that Stop but Once from Harlem River to 89th Street.

The Manhattan Elevated Railroad this morning surprised the public by inaugurating a system of express trains on its Third Avenue line.

The centre track from One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street to Eighty-ninth street, was used for this purpose. Below that point the trains ran as regulars, as there were no facilities for the passing of trains.

Only one stop was made between the stations named and that was at One Hundred and Sixth street.

At the office of General Manager T. K. Hain it was learned that the new scheme is yet an experiment. The extra trains are run through the city from One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street without stop, except at One Hundred and Sixth street, to Eighty-ninth street, to serve the passengers on the elevated track between these points. No general schedule of timothy, on complaint of the authorities deemed it advisable to make the autopsy, and the suspected party should not get wind of it.

THE WORLD: FRIDAY EVENING, JANUARY 2, 1891.

William Young's Coming Tragedy Based on Corsican Legends.

Minnie Palmer's New Play—Miss Davenport's "Cleopatra."

William Young's romantic tragedy, "Ganelon," which will have its first metropolitan production at the Broadway Theatre Monday night, is founded upon a Corsican legend that runs as follows: "In these days came to this island Ganelon, son of that Ganelon who, at the battle of the Malinche, betrayed the Emperor Charlemagne, and it was his hope by deeds of gallantry against the Saracens—to whom his father had sold himself—to redeem from infamy his hapless name."

Mr. Young has borrowed very extensively from French secondary literature, and the play deals with the fortunes of Ganelon in love and war. Great preparations have been made for the production. Here are the names of the members of the company: Lawrence Barrett, Ben C. Rogers, Frederick Woods, Lawrence Havel, Albert Brining, James Taylor, William H. Crane, Frank Leighton, Herbert Patton, Miss Emma K. Gale, Miss Keith Wakeman, John A. Lane, Beaumont Smith, Edward Wood, George Heston and George McCullin.

It is said that Miss Emma K. Gale since she blossomed forth as a star has already employed the services of three tracts of lawyers. She changes her legal advisers with as little ado as she would her gloves or hat. Miss Lane and her managers, Messrs. Mayer and Stern, hold very little commensurate. In fact the relations are decidedly "unhappy."

Miss Evelyn Pollock, sister of Miss Emma Pollock, whose Terpsichorean skill was one of the features of "Reilly and the 400," at Harvard's Theatre, has been engaged by Denman Whitcomb for the production of "Joseph Whitcomb," at the Academy of Music, Jan. 12.

Manager J. M. Hill is working in aid of a benefit to be given to Mike Sweeney, the gas man of the Union Square Theatre, who has been disabled by a fall from a ladder. The benefit will take place at the Union Square Jan. 11.

Here are a few scintillating sayings from "Ganelon": "In the great epic war between love and fools, my sympathies go with the rogues." "The public are fools. One is bound to deceive them for their own good."

"Why try to prove that fairy tales are false and make the children unhappy?" "The idea of dryads and nymphs is as good as that of germ-plasm and protoplasm."

Manager E. J. Gilmore opened a bottle of champagne at the Hoffman House this morning, and eagerly scanned the morning papers for news on the conference in France.

While he was so occupied Mr. T. P. O'Connor, the only other member of the Irish party left in America, walked in.

Mr. O'Connor returned last night from Richmond, where he has spent the holiday. The door was locked and the two began to talk the matter over. Orders were given not to allow any one to go to the room.

A reporter's card came back with the answer that Mr. Dillon had nothing to say this morning. He might prepare a statement this afternoon.

He wanted to consult with Mr. O'Connor before he said anything on the subject.

TAMMANY MEN IN THE GOLD.

Jurors Commissioner Reilly Makes Several New Appointments.

James E. Conners, the popular Deputy Commissioner of Jurors, came down to his office to-day to discover that he no longer held the position which he had held so acceptably for eight years.

Commissioner Reilly had discharged him and appointed in his place Edward F. McCune, one of ex-Alderman Sheple's Fourth District Jeffersons. The place was taken by a new man, and Conners is a member of the Tammany Hall organization in the Third District, and Tammany men are generally not so well liked by the public as McCune.

McCune, who succeeds him, used to be the police and Supreme Court, special term. The removal of Mr. Conners by Commissioner Reilly is a move which will be a blow to the Tammany Hall organization in the Third District, and Tammany men are generally not so well liked by the public as McCune.

Reilly had asked that his non-lawyer be named as one of the assistants to District Attorney Neill.

Mr. Douglas was a deputy assistant under District Attorney Neill.

Commissioner Reilly's term expires May 1 next, and he is expected to leave the office before that time. He will not be reappointed after this act of hostility towards him.

Some faithful Tammany Hall men will undoubtedly secure this easy six-year job.

CAUGHT A CHICKEN-THIEF.

Chinamen Lay in Wait for the Robber with Clubs.

Several Chinamen appeared at the Tombs this morning against a badly battered up specimen, who gave his name as Thomas Reilly and claimed to live at 2 Roosevelt street.

They claim that Reilly broke into a shed belonging to Sam Low, who keeps a restaurant at 36 West street and was five cents short.

Quong Sang, who happened to go out into the yard at 1 A. M., saw Reilly disappearing with the chickens under his arm. He rushed into the restaurant and told his friend Sam Low. Together they lay in wait for the thief, and about 6 A. M. he returned with the chickens. The Chinamen caught him. He was held for trial.

A MODERN INDIAN STORY.

How Samantha Vanquished the Untamed Children of the Plains.

Presence of Mind in a Crisis Saved Her Prairie Cabin.

Meantime, let us return to the fair Samantha. As the shadow of night gathered about the isolated dwelling a vague foreboding and disquietude began to oppress her mind. She reflected upon her lonely and defenseless situation; upon the alarming reports of hostile depredations which were rife among the Chicago News.

Moved by that peculiar and irresistible instinct of the female mind, she recalled all she had read and heard of the red men's atrocities. She pictured herself attacked, slain, scalped, and flung into the hands of the savages.

Nothing but the buffalo grass below, the atmosphere of the night, and the moonlight above. Down by the creek stood a few scrub oaks, their gaunt, leafless trunks sharply outlined against the unlighting sky; their gnarled and twisted limbs in ghastly silhouette against the pale moonlight.

Accustomed as she had been from childhood to the life of a pioneer, and to her most abandoned moods Samantha had never been so much alarmed as she was now. Her heart throbbed with a fierce and sudden fear.

Her naturally strong mind had regained its wonted equilibrium, and she was now looking at the world with a new and steady gaze.

It seemed odd that none of the 122-pound fighters have any inclination to meet Jimmy the boxer, who has been fighting for some time with his first defeat.

Matters will be interesting in smaller rowing circles here two weeks from to-morrow, when the annual meeting of the National Amateur Regatta Association will be held in this city. The visiting delegates will be well taken care of by the local club.

Eugene Hornbaker is the favorite in the betting in the coming skin-grip fight to a finish between him and Scotty Cox.

The Sylva Athletic Club, of Jersey City, although only a little more than a year old has over 100 members, which is a remarkably high showing.

The prospects are that the admirers of athletic contests will have a treat in to-day's race on Wednesday next at the club rooms of the Union Athletic Club, of Brooklyn.

The amateur bowlers are not saying much, but they are getting there just the same. There is a good deal of bowling in the city, and the players are few and far between, which are not occupied by a club every night in the city.

There were more good resolutions made by sporting men yesterday will be kept up through the month of January. That old bracer in the morning is almost an absolute necessity with some.

NOTES AMONG THE SPORTS.

Dempsey's Coming Battle to Be the Fight of His Life.

A Smith-McAuliffe Match More Than a Probable Event.

The coming fight between Jack Dempsey and Bob Fitzsimmons is creating more of a sensation in sporting circles than a Presidential election. Everybody in the vicinity would like to see Dempsey win, but there seems to be a general impression that this will prove the
